Middle Fork Lands Protected

In the last forest of the Middle Fork Snaquehine River Valley, another 14 acres have been protected by King County. "This is an important acquisition. Twenty years ago we didn't know what would become of the Middle Fork. Most of the lower valley was in private ownership and starting to be carved up into cabin sites. Steeping, dumping, and craviness was the scene," says Doug Schneider, Deputy Director of the Gateway Trust. "Today, through the hard work of many, most of the 100,000-acre valley is in public ownership and the area is cleaned up and safe for families. This property is one of the last in-bidings we have been helping to acquire for 15 years."

This view looks north over Clifford Lakes toward Russian State in the Middle Fork Snaquehine River Valley. Lands in this area near to the Alpine Lakes Wilderness have been acquired over the past 20 years by the Washington State Department of Natural Resources.

Middle Fork News:

- The Washington State Department of Natural Resources received a grant to design a trailhead and roads in the area of this acquisition.
- The Federal Highway Administration is working to secure funds to pave about 7 miles of the Middle Fork Road. The project aims to improve public access and safety, replace many fish-blocking stream culverts, and significantly cut gravel and sediment runoff during storms.
- The State Board of Natural Resources just approved adding several thousand acres of State Forest land in the valley into the Mount St. Helens National Conservation Area.
